Diploma Course in Forensic Medical Sciences

The Cameron Centre for Forensic Medical Sciences is holding a course in forensic medicine, forensic science and the law as applicable to the forensic sciences.

Students who have successfully completed the course will be eligible to sit for the Diploma in Forensic Medical Sciences which is offered by the Society of Apothecaries.

The course will comprise 30, two hour sessions on a broad range of topics, delivered by recognised forensic specialists and will be held on Thursday evenings from 7pm–9pm starting on 4th October 2007 through to June 2008.

The course is suitable for health professionals, scientists, advocates, law enforcement officers and others with a bona fide interest in the forensic medical sciences. A higher qualification is not essential. Suitability for admission to the course will be at the discretion of the course organisers.

The course aims to deliver core knowledge in the forensic medical sciences. The Diploma in Forensic Medical Sciences is recognised by the newly established Faculty of Forensic and Legal Medicine of the Royal College of Physicians as an entry level qualification for medical practitioners seeking membership of the faculty.

The fee for the course is £1000 and can either be paid in full prior to commencement of the course, or in three instalments (of £400, £300 & £300) payable prior to the commencement of each term (October, January and April).
